On September 18, 2019, the Minister Responsible for Government Administration and Chair of the Conseil du trésor introduced Bill 37, *An Act mainly to establish the Centre d'acquisitions gouvernementales et Infrastructures technologiques Québec*¹

As its name suggests, this bill is intended to implement the restructuring of government procurement announced in the 2019–2020 budget². If the bill is passed, the Centre de services partagés du Québec (CSPQ), as well as some other procurement organizations, will be replaced by two bodies: the Centre d'acquisitions gouvernementales will be the organization responsible for meeting the government's general procurement needs, and Infrastructures technologiques Québec will handle its digital procurement.

In 2017–2018, information technology contracts accounted for 17% of public body contracts³. Some administrative functions of the CSPQ would also be transferred to the Agence du revenu du Québec and the Conseil du trésor.

Bill 37 also makes a number of amendments to the Act respecting contracting by public bodies, CQLR c. C-65.1, and its regulations, two of which are noteworthy.

It is planned that, as of April 1, 2020, information relating to contracts involving an expenditure of more than $10,000, whether reached by mutual agreement or following a call for tenders, will have to be published in the electronic tendering system. The current limit is $25,000⁴.

The bill also provides that, as of the date its assent (currently scheduled for the end of 2019), the imposition of a penalty for a final reassessment under the general anti-avoidance rule regarding an abusive tax avoidance transaction⁵ on the part of a company or related person will be recorded in the Register of Enterprises Ineligible for Public Contracts for five years.

Such penalties will also be considered by the Autorité des marchés publics in its decision to authorize a contract with a public body.

A 60-day transitional period is provided for in Bill 37, during which a taxpayer may make a late preventive disclosure to the Minister of Revenue⁶ by filing the form Mandatory or preventive disclosure of tax planning (TP-1079.DI-V). However, this type of disclosure will not be accepted if an audit by the Agence du revenu du Québec or the Canada Revenue Agency is already ongoing with respect to such a transaction. This measure is part of the current fight against aggressive tax planning⁷.
